

Research-Based Strategies for Strong DISTRICT Leadership on Partnerships¹

CREATE AWARENESS

Promote district and school partnership programs to key stakeholders, including teachers, administrators, families, school board, businesses, and community groups.

ALIGN PROGRAM & POLICY

Integrate partnership plans and practices with official policies, strategic plans, and goals for student success. Help schools connect engagement activities to school goals for student achievement and behavior.

GUIDE LEARNING & PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT

Conduct professional development workshops and provide on-going technical assistance to help the district and school teams strengthen their partnership plans and practices over time.

SHARE KNOWLEDGE

Communicate with district colleagues and school teams to share best practices. Continually update knowledge about effective programs of school, family, and community partnerships.

CELEBRATE MILESTONES

Recognize progress and excellence on partnerships at the district and school levels.

DOCUMENT PROGRESS & EVALUATE OUTCOMES

Evaluate teamwork, outreach, and quality of each engagement activity that is implemented. Conduct annual evaluations of the quality and progress of partnership programs, overall.

ABOUT NNPS

National Network of Partnership Schools (NNPS) at Johns Hopkins University was established in 1996 by Dr. Joyce Epstein and colleagues, after many years of research on family and community engagement.

NNPS Professional Development.

The mission of NNPS is to “grow leaders” for partnerships across the country. NNPS professional development is based on research on the structures and processes that ensure effective, equitable, and sustainable programs of family and community engagement at the district and school levels.

Active Members. NNPS includes over 500 schools, districts, organizations, and state departments of education in the U.S., and partners in other countries. Your district will become part of this exciting network.

Schools. Schools in NNPS use the research-based framework of six types of involvement, an action team approach, and written plans to implement, evaluate, and continually improve family and community engagement.

Schools' Action Teams for Partnerships (ATPs) select involvement activities that help create a welcoming school climate and that are linked to academic and behavioral goals for students in their own School Improvement Plans.

Districts. District leaders for partnerships in NNPS organize district-level activities and guide schools to strengthen goal-linked partnership programs at all grade levels. District policies for family and community engagement guide the work of district leaders and school teams.

YOU ARE INVITED . . .

Join other districts in NNPS that are working to implement their family engagement policies in all schools.

Use evidence-based strategies to customize plans for partnership to match the district's goals for student success.

WHY NOW?

The time is right to strengthen your schools' partnership programs at the preschool, elementary, middle, and high school levels.

The time is right to ensure that all families feel welcome at school and are engaged in ways that support student achievement, attendance, health, plans for college and career, and other important outcomes.

Everyone wants strong and sustainable programs of family and community engagement. NNPS will help you reach this goal.
